Forging and engineering steel bar for manufacturing.

Specialist steel stockholding since 1970.

A specialist steel stockholder based in the West Midlands we have been serving the Engineering, Forging, Fabrication, Oil and Gas industries since 1970.

With our own transport and distribution base along with a wide range of steel bar and billets in stock we supply customers all over the UK and Ireland. Our 'in house' cutting service means we can provide the lengths you need to your specification.

As a steel stockist, we offer a wide range of steels covering, round bars from 12mm, billet from 50mm and other plate sheet and structural sections. Products include:

- All carbon and popular alloy grades of steel
- Black bars for forging and machining
- Bright bar turned or drawn
- Hot rolled billet squares for forging or machining
- Volume supply of special steels to customer order
- Precision ground bar

What we do

“Due to the quick reaction from D&J Steels, we were able to satisfy a pull forward on our customer’s schedule and exceed their expectations.

This was literally down to material availability on the morning of our phone call, and us being able to forge parts the same afternoon. I am sure we will both benefit from this level of service to our customer.”

How we do it

Our focus is simple. We build our business by concentrating on our customers. Providing them with a flexible, responsive service UK wide. All delivered by our long serving and highly experienced staff.

It works too, as we consistently outperform our competitors when it comes to responsiveness, product knowledge and communicating with our customers.

Your margins are under pressure, deadlines are tight. You'll want to keep stock and working capital to a minimum. That's why we'll work closely with your procurement and production planning people to offer JIT deliveries from dedicated stocks managed and delivered by us. And we'll do so quickly and efficiently.

Whether it be Carbon or Alloy grade steel we can supply one off orders, small or large batch multiples delivered to a customer's specific requirements.

In-house cutting service

Through our 'in house' cutting service we offer a high degree of flexibility for our customers allowing us to meet challenging delivery schedules.
